Where He Saw Them.

Some time ago Hans was enjoying a quiet hour with a friend over a social pretzel, when he suddenly changed the conversation and turned to the other with an animated expression. "Shoot (ink vat) I see dis afternoon, Yawcob!" said he. "It was der voras after! Two men bit by a trolley and cut up about der same like choppy wood!" "Vot a dat?" exclaimed the friend, sitting right up and beginning to take notice. "Do you mean to say dot you haf seen some sights like dot? Vere you see him?" "In der afternoon newspaper!" was the innocent rejoinder of Hans.

IS SICKNESS A SIN?

If not, it's wicked to neglect illness and means of relief. It's wicked to endure liver ills, headache, indigestion, constipation, when one dose of Po-Do-Lax gives relief. Po-Do-Lax is a cathartic (May apple), without the grip. It arouses the liver, increases the flow of bile—nature's antiseptic in the bowels. Your constipation and other ills disappear over-night because Po-Do-Lax has helped nature to remove the cause. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Get rid of your constipation over-night.—Adv. d&w

DAILY EXPRESS ICE BLANKET

To its many subscribers, old and new, the Daily Express is offering a most unique premium that should at once become popular in every home in Chickasha where there is a refrigerator or ice box. The blanket is made of vegetable parchment, is thoroughly sanitary, and its value lies in the fact that it excludes heat from the outside and retains the cold air beneath. Just place the blanket loose over exposed side of ice, top or front, tucking the edges in. It will keep the outside warm air from coming in contact with the ice and save one half, and will not decrease refrigeration. The blanket is not porous so it will not become musty or strong smelling, won't dissolve or go to pieces when wet, so you need have no fear of clogging the drain pipe. Don't use any more porous, unsanitary cloths, burlap sacks or newspapers on your ice.

The only consideration necessary to secure one of these blankets, is to pay one month's subscription in advance to the Daily Express—forty cents—and our collector, or collectors, and you own it. Or the blankets may be obtained on the same terms at the Daily Express office.

If you do not desire to advance your subscription one month, the ice blanket may be bought at this office. Price 10 cents.

NOTICE FOR SEALED BIDS.

The board of county commissioners of Grady county, Oklahoma, will receive sealed bids for the purchase of three (3) cars of coal for the county's use, to be delivered as follows: One (1) car to the bins at the separate school building, in the city of Chickasha, and two cars to be delivered in the county bins at the court house. All bids must be filed with the county clerk on or before the 8th day of September, 1917, and must be on clean burn coal, screened over 9-in. screens, from Oklahoma mines.

All bids filed will be opened and presented to the board at 2 o'clock p. m., September 6, 1917. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids received.

FOR DAN'S DEAR SAKE

By ELINOR GATES.

Hildreth-Chesley was all agog over the charms, the wealth, the clothes of a newcomer, Mrs. Ruel Latran, who had taken the Farms under rather a long lease—Green Farms, to be exact, the show place of the colony. Who ever lived in it must have money, also social sponsors; also, beyond all, personality.

You see, Olney, who owned the Farms, although tired of the place, yet held it in a certain petulant regard, which made him exacting as to possible tenants.

The which is illuminating—both as to owner and new tenant. Olney had never seen her, but what he had heard from a mutual acquaintance so prepossessed him in her favor that his inquiries had not gone beyond her bank account.

The colony, of course, swarmed in welcome to her. That she was distinctly new was all in her favor. A vague haze of romance enshrouded her past.

No armor is so impenetrable as a casual frankness that scouts the name of secrets. Mrs. Latran was amazingly frank—even about her age. Twenty-nine she gave herself out to be, sighing that it was so near to thirty and waving away cooing speech that she hardly looked twenty-five. Further, she spoke of her college, of her native country, touching very lightly on the fact that she was the last of her race. Oddly, she did not think ever to mention the family name, but there was no tripping her, even if anybody had tried it, over country sights and sounds, and habits of mind.

It was even odder—women took to her amazingly. As Teeny Ware put it, she was the best sort of good fellow.

Olney, who came down in August, laughed over the saying. His coming was a surprise. Of course, he did not go to the Farms, but he did meet the mistress of it many times. Also, he studied her intently—a thing he had rarely done for any woman.

Notwithstanding, they got on admirably. She apparently ignored the challenge of his scrutiny and was gay and cordial as with all the rest. So there was really scant warrant for his saying to her at the end of a fortnight, "Madam, whatever the game is henceforth you must count me in."

"Not yet. It would spoil—everything," she answered, and it was amazing what mirth and mockery danced over her eyes and mouth. "I dare not even let my whole self in," she ran on. "The experiment is as gorgeous as a soap bubble—and as easily broken."

"I won't break it," Olney answered, kindly. "Tell me by little. As, for instance, isn't Dan Langton the original first cause of it?"

"You are his best friend!" she parried.

Olney nodded, but said quickly: "I come next to you. No—he hasn't said so outright—but when he talked of you the very first time—I knew."

"So that's why you let me come here," she said, smiling and nodding. "And I have believed it was all my wonderful man of business. Say! What did he tell you?"

"Nothing—had no chance," Olney answered tranquilly. Then, dropping to a plaintive key: "Please remember I've a weak heart—can't stand this strain of curiosity. Tell me and I'll never tell anybody—but Dan."

"You mean—about the experiment?" she asked.

Olney smiled a "Yes." She went on quickly, as though fearing to lose courage: "The experiment is—to see if a bookmade woman can hold her own with—the other sort."

"Explain! This is all Sanskrit to me," Olney exploded.

She drew a deep breath and hurried on: "My mother was a cook, my father a day laborer. He died when I was five, and when I was fifteen my mother followed him. Then old Ruel Latran, for whom she had worked all my life, a cripple and blind, married me—to save me. He made a will giving me everything. For seven years I was eyes, hands, feet to him, never stirring from the house except for walks while he slept. I don't know how he got the notion, but he himself proposed correspondence courses to me. Also he let me have books and leisure, getting in a stout nurse so I might have more time. Almost his last words before the stroke were: 'Make yourself a lady so you'll do credit to the money.' I did my best—am doing it still."

"After I was free there was a period of travel. In course of it I met Dan. You know what he is—how high-strung, how almost fluky—yet in a week he was begging me to marry him. I would have done it, gladly only for one thing—I loved him just as crazily, just as unreasonably as he loved me. I couldn't take the chance of making him ashamed of me—that is to say, of making him hate me. So I've come here among his own sort to try myself out. Tell me—what chance have I of winning?"

"No chance about it—it's a dead moral certainty!" Olney declared brusquely, getting up and shaking both her hands. Over his shoulder he added: "I'm going to call up Dan. Be ready to see us around twelve tomorrow. He's always said I should be his best man."
